(The Explorer, 1980)

PROFESSIONAL DIVISION OPENS

At long last, 1980 heralds the official opening of the Institute's Professional Division.

In response to many requests, the Professional Division is designed to assist researchers, clinicians, practitioners, educators, and related organizations in the application and additional study of the Institute hemi-sync techniques in their particular field of endeavor. The Division will offer special hemi-sync tapes for use by Professional Members in research or private and clinical practice. Research data from members and other sources also will be circulated among such membership.

In addition, weekend seminars for training and research in the application of hemispheric synchronization will be held frequently at The Center in Virginia. (See accompanying 1980 Schedule). The Professional Division Executive Committee is composed of Arthur Gladman, M.D., Stuart Twemlow, M.D., Todd Mickurea, M.D., Fowler Jones, Ph.D., William Schul, Ph.D., and Mary Jane Ledyard, Ph.D.

Among present areas to be considered are stress-tension reduction, control of pain, psychotic state remission, drug and alcohol addiction, autistic and other childhood disfunctions, post-stroke therapy, creativity, and accelerated and specialized learning.

Letters of invitation are now being mailed to those who already have expressed an interest in Professional Membership. If your activities lead in this direction, write or phone the Institute in Virginia for information and application forms.

Hemi-Sync® is a registered trademark of Interstate Industries, Inc.
© 1980 The Monroe Institute